Tyler Creasy Named New Director of Community Development

Amherst County Administration would like to welcome Stewart (Tyler) Creasy to his new Director of Community Development position. Tyler started with Amherst County in October 2018 as the Public Information Officer. In 2019, he moved into the Assistant Zoning Administrator position and has served as Interim Co-Director of Community Development since October 2022.

As Director of Community Development, Mr. Creasy will oversee the Division of Planning and Zoning and the Division of Building Safety and Inspections. He will direct and supervise the short and long-range planning activities, service, and programs and coordinates and oversees zoning enforcement. Additionally, the roles included setting policies, preparing reports, and supporting associated Boards and Commissions.

An Amherst native, Tyler graduated from Amherst County High School before attending James Madison University (JMU). While there, he received his Bachelor's Degree in Justice Studies with a minor in Geographic Information Systems (GIS). Soon after he completed undergraduate work, Tyler enrolled in JMU's Masters of Public Administration program and graduated in May 2017.
